

Boscawen-un Stone Circle

Boscawenoon is the site of the impressively complete Boscawen-un Stone Circle which is set in a beautiful location near the village of St Buryan, west of Penzance. It is a very important site, both historically and also spiritually to many members of the local community, and is still used at certain times of the year to conduct celebrations such as at mid summer and mid winter. PAROW has done much work in restoring and maintaining this site.

Prk in a small lay by alongside the A30, approximately 1.5 miles past the St Buryan turn off heading west. It is possible to park several cars alongside the road with care, and then to follow a wooden sign through a small gate. Continue ahead down hill along an obvious grass path for approximately 5 minutes to reach the stones which are surrounded by Blackthorn bushes. It is possible to enter the enclosure either through a gate or over a stile.
